

Horripilation

by Elena de Roo
illustrated by Matt Ottley

When winter's chill is in the air
and icy draughts dash down the stair,
beware the prickle of your skin.

DO NOT LET THAT GOOSEBUMP IN!

For every one, there's a hundred more—
each cold calling door to door.

One shiver and they'll take your arm,
deceive you with their hairy charm.
Every follicle's their mission.
Every deal they seal—commission.
A contract clause in every pore
before you've found the jumper drawer.

